October 2, 2010 (Sat)

Honolulu to Tokyo

An early morning flight will take us from Honolulu to Japan.

October 3, 2010 (Sun)

Tokyo

We arrive in Tokyo around noon. After we pass through immigrations and customs, we will head to our hotel. Once we have checked in, we will head to Tokyo Disney Sea. This is Tokyo Disneyland's sister park and gives us seven ports of call. Explore the Mediterranean Harbor, the Mysterious Island, the Mermaid Lagoon, the Arabian Coast, Lost River Delta, Port Discovery, and an American Waterfront. Each port offers rides and shows for you to explore based on their specific themes.

October 4, 2010 (Mon)

Tokyo Disneyland

Today we head to Tokyo Disneyland. Here we will visit with Mickey and his friends. You will have a chance to ride on familiar favorites like It's a Small World, Jungle Boat Cruise, and Star Tours. We can also see the updated Haunted House and the Pirates of the Caribbean.

October 5, 2010 (Tues)

Tokyo Disneyland and Disney Sea

This is our last day to visit Mickey and Friends. With our park pass, we can visit both Disneyland and Disney Sea. You are free to switch between parks throughout the day.

October 6, 2010 (Wed)

Puroland

We leave the Magic Kingdom and now head to the home of Hello Kitty. Puroland is an amusement park dedicated to Hello Kitty and all her friends. This indoor park has themed rides, shows, games, and many Hello Kitty products.

October 7, 2010 (Thur)

Asakusa / Kappa Bashi Dori / Asakusabashi

Today will be spent in three areas of Tokyo, Asakusa, Kappa Bashi Dori, and Asakusabashi. Our first stop will be Asakusa, which is a famous Japanese landmark, known for its giant red lantern. The surrounding area, Nakamise Dori, has numerous handicraft stores selling things like beads. From there we will go to Kappa Bashi Dori, a kitchen wholesale district, where you can find everything from plastic food to the kitchen sink. For our last stop we will explore Asakusabashi, an area noted for wholesale handicraft items, from stamps and paper to beads and cords.

October 8, 2010 (Fri)

Ueno Zoo / Ameyoko / Akihabara

Our first stop of the day will be to Ueno Zoo, Japan's oldest zoo. It offers the widest variety of animals. From there we head to Ameyoko cho, a food wholesale area where we can find everything from candies and cookies to dried seafood. Our last stop will be to Tokyo's electric town, Akihabara. Here the latest electronics can be found alongside costumed figures from Japan's animation history.

Tonight, we will have a special farewell dinner.

October 9, 2010 (Sat)

Tokyo to Honolulu

The morning is free to relax and finish your packing. Our last stop before we head to the airport is a visit to a local shopping center where you can stretch your legs and have a late lunch on your own. We depart from Tokyo in the evening for Honolulu.
